Module Aims

This module aims to give you an overview of the international setting in which English Law operates and to develop the skills you need to be able to research European Union and International Law effectively

Outline Syllabus

The internal market of the EU including the Free Movement of Goods, Services and Persons. Selected EU law topics which can include EU external relations, EU Environmental Law, EU Law and Gender (some of these will be self-study topics leading to the poster presentation), selected International Law topics such as introductions to international criminal law, environmental law and economic law.

Module Learning Outcomes

On successful completion of this module, students will be able to...

- 1 Describe and Critique the law in selected EU and International Law areas
- 2 apply your knowledge of EU and International Law to solve legal problems
- 3 make reasoned arguments about law in a global context which are based on research
- 4 communicate effectively in writing

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy

This module encourages you to think critically about law in a global context and how European Union Law and International Law impact on our daily lives and the lives of others. Every week you will have a 2 hour lecture and a 2 hour session in smaller groups which will take the form of workshops. You will be expected to prepare for lectures by reading set material and researching key questions and for small group sessions by answering set theoretical questions (LO 1 and LO3) or working through problem scenarios (LO1 and LO2). Your first assessment takes the form of an exam which will take place about half way through the Semester. The exam is focused on your ability to apply your legal knowledge to solve legal problems (LO1 and LO2 and to present coherent legal arguments (LO3 and LO4). In addition you will need to create a poster and take part in a poster presentation in small groups. The poster focuses on LO3 and LO4 and tests your ability to research an area of law relevant to this module and to present your findings in a concise, well written, reasoned and coherent manner. The poster presentation guidelines will be available at the start of the semester.
