- 2 apply the legal skills and principles to solve theoretical and practical problems.
- 3 communicate effectively in writing as appropriate to different audiences

Learning, Teaching and Assessment Strategy

Teaching is in the format of a weekly 2 hour session and one hour lecture. Formative feedback is given in the seminars on student work. The majority of study time in this module consists of directed study. A reading list will be provided and you will be encouraged to do your own research. You will be expected to prepare for sessions by answering theoretical questions (LO1, LO2), preparing essays (LO1, LO3) and tackling problem questions (LO2, LO3). You will have access to additional material such as web links, lecture slides and notes on the virtual learning environment. This module assesses your progress as you go through the module and you are required to submit 2 pieces of coursework; usually after week6 of study and then after completion of the teaching sessions (the exact timing of the submissions will be confirmed in the module handbook
